

Asking and Divulging Personal Information Scenarios
L3

You are at work, and the presidential election has just occurred. You have really strong feelings about the results. You are sitting with other co-workers in the break room, and the political news comes on the television.

What do you do?

Asking and Divulging Personal Information Scenarios
L3

You have been hired for a new job, and you need to make a request for certain workplace accommodations. In order to seek these accommodations, you will need to formally disclose to your supervisor that you have a disability (under the Americans with Disabilities Act).

What do you do?

Asking and Divulging Personal Information Scenarios
L3

There is a problem with your computer at work. It has logged you off and will not accept your password. A co-worker who sits nearby comes over and says, "I can help, what is your password?"

What do you do?

Asking and Divulging Personal Information Scenarios
L3

You have been out sick for several days with a terrible stomach virus. When you return to work, a co-worker asks where you have been.

What do you do?

Asking and Divulging Personal Information Scenarios
L3

Your co-worker has been gone for over a month. When she returns, you notice that she has lost a lot of weight and she looks really healthy and good.

What do you do?

Asking and Divulging Personal Information Scenarios
L3

You recently had a huge fight with your significant other, and you are feeling really upset. One of your co-workers notices that you seem upset, and they ask you what is wrong.

What do you do?