

Exiting the Conversation scenario card:

L3

You are talking to a co-worker about their weekend plans. You don't feel like talking anymore and you want to get back to work.

What do you do and say? Act it out.

Exiting the Conversation scenario card:

L3

Your co-worker is explaining how to do a task. However, it is time for you to leave work to go to a doctor's appointment.

What do you do and say? Act it out.

Exiting the Conversation scenario card:

L3

Your supervisor is telling you how to complete a new task. You are pretty sure you know what to do, and you are feeling ready to get back to work.

What do you do and say? Act it out.

Exiting the Conversation scenario card:

L3

You are talking with a peer about your favorite video game. All of a sudden your friend realizes that he is late for class and needs to go.

What do you do and say? Act it out.

Exiting the Conversation scenario card:

L3

You are working on a history project with two peers. You are really excited about the transcontinental railroad and are telling them all sorts of facts about it. You notice that your classmates aren't really saying anything or asking you any questions about the transcontinental railroad.

What do you do and say? Act it out.

Ending the Conversation scenario card:

L3

You are talking to your co-worker about all of the fun things you did this weekend. You notice that your co-worker is packing up his things. It is 4 o'clock, and the shift is over.

What do you do and say? Act it out.

Ending the Conversation scenario
card:

L3

While talking with a co-worker, he gets a phone call. You are right in the middle of telling him something really important.

What do you do and say? Act it out.

Exiting the Conversation scenario
card:

L3

A co-worker is talking to you about a new machine that you will be using. You have to go to the bathroom pretty bad.

What do you do and say? Act it out.