

Sometimes zombies might not know what to do when they are working on a task. If zombies could use their brains and think before they acted, they would not interrupt at the wrong time. Here is what they would try to do:

Walk over to the person who can help them.

Look and think: Is this person busy? Are they on the phone? Are they talking to someone else?

If the person is not busy and if zombies could talk, zombies would say: "Excuse me, I have a question. Is this a good time?"

