I really like graphic arts and want to make comics someday. I will need to take courses in graphic design and in animation when I finish high school. I need good grades in high school to get into a school that teaches these courses.

In graphic design courses, I will need to keep up with assignments. I will need to hand in all assignments on time. If I do this, I have a chance to get a job in graphic design.

In high school I need to learn how to keep up with assignments and not lose them. I need to learn to complete assignments on time so I do not get penalized for late assignments.

If I work on using Ms. Southern's binder system, I can get better at keeping up with assignments. Then I will make better grades in my classes.
