

Using your time wisely:

High school requires moving quickly to various classes and activities in specific amounts of time. There is not a lot of time between classes.

If I am slow and get distracted, I may arrive at my next class or activity late. Coming in late to a class or activity means I have caused an interruption. Other students become distracted and the teacher becomes irritated for being interrupted. They may think that I am annoying and not being responsible because I am late.

I need to move to each class or activity quickly so I can make it on time. If I get there on time, the students will have more respect for me and the teacher will not become irritated with me.
