Finding a job can be really tough.

Companies today are not hiring as many people as they used to and are more selective in whom they hire.

Sometimes it takes companies a long time to make a hiring decision.

It is important to apply to more than one company at a time.

If I wait for one employer to respond and then do not get the job, I will waste several days or weeks.

Instead, I should apply to as many jobs as I can.

By applying to more than one job the chances of obtaining a job are much higher.

Who knows, a second or third job application may result in a better job offer with better pay!
